

Regulatory Consulting & Strategy

Hydrix is one of Australia's longest standing, most experienced developers of medical devices. We offer the full suite of product development services, from concept to distribution. We are also unique in incorporating regulatory strategy and clinical guidance into our product development process.

We assist companies to navigate the changing regulatory environment, including US FDA, European CE, Australian TGA, Chinese (NMPA) and other Asia Pacific countries. We offer a fully integrated regulatory team, clinical affairs specialists and product development professionals, supported by a mature Quality Management System available to guide you through your project challenges.

Through our experience, we have developed a choice of tailored regulatory packages.

Regulatory packages to suit your specific needs

Helping you navigate your product development journey

Clinical, regulatory, quality & reimbursement considerations apply from early concepts through to final product commercialisation. The Hydrix team has proven processes to guide you through every step of the regulatory pathway.
